The Wireless OFFICE

Cut the clutter, ramp up performance with these cool devices.

BY HOWARD WHITMAN

At one time, the concept of an office full of electronic machines running without wires was the stuff of futuristic sci-fi movies, right up there with the hover car. But no more! Today, you can populate your home or business office with an amazing variety of reasonably priced digital products offering fast, dependable performance while taking up minimal space and eliminating all of that “spaghetti” that used to cover your floor.

We’ve put together our ideal wireless office, featuring some cool gear you should consider adding to yours. Check it out.

Digital Storm xm15

These days, every office needs a computer; here’s a great one. Digital Storm’s xm15 hybrid laptop is perfect for gamers and users requiring high-level multimedia performance. Hybrid technology enables switching to a second graphics processor for less demanding programs, which improves battery life and lets you enjoy longer usage times to surf the web, run intensive business applications, or kick back with a great movie or game. The xm15’s 1080p HD LED screen ensures great video, and its built-in VGA and HDMI outputs enable you to take it—and show it—anywhere. (starts at $999)

Smartfish Whirl Desktop Mouse

Smartfish has taken the traditional mouse configuration and completely reinvented it with the Whirl, a sleek model intended to give your hand a break and help prevent Carpal Tunnel Syndrome. The Whirl’s ErgoMotion technology enables the mouse to swivel and quickly adjust to your hand’s position. Its ambidextrous design works with both right- and left-handed users. It comes with a USB plug-in for wireless operation, and it works with both PCs and Macs. ($49.95)
